

A MCMILLIN TRADITION: 2010 MDR SUPERSTITION SERIES SPONSORED BY MCMILLIN HOMES

Three generations of McMillin's have raced in the MDR Superstition Series

Press Release:

November 4, 2009

El Monte, California - MDR Productions is proud to announce that McMillin Homes will remain the title sponsor of the MDR Superstition Off-Road Series held in Imperial Valley, California.

McMillin Homes was founded in 1960 by Corky McMillin. The Corky McMillin Companies constructs homes in San Diego, Bakersfield and Central Valley, California, as well as San Antonio, Texas. In Southern California, the company develops master-planned communities and is the creator of Liberty Station, San Diego's newest premier destination to live, work, shop and play in Southern California.

Three generations of the McMillin family have raced the Superstition Series since its inception in 1997, and the entire McMillin family are avid off-road racers having won multiple championships and races since the early 70's.

MDR Productions first promoted off-road racing in 1996, beginning in the world famous Mojave Desert near Barstow, California. Fast forward 13 years, and MDR has expanded to operating thirteen races a year in the greater Southern California area, including six races in the MDR / McMillin Superstition Series located in Imperial Valley.

Together with the generous support from McMillin Homes, the 2010 MDR / McMillin Superstition Series is expected to be an exciting year of off-road racing.

"Our family has participated in the MDR Superstition Series since the beginning and we believe in supporting this series. We couldn't race in this series without the dedicated work of the entire MDR family and McMillin Homes is proud to be associated with off-road desert racing in Imperial Valley," said Mark McMillin.
